

Graduate student request RE: NCSE's "Making the Grade" (2020) report

Justin Barnes <jbarnes9@ucmerced.edu>

Sun 1/28/2024 4:12 PM

To: andrews@ncse.ngo <andrews@ncse.ngo>; grimes@ncse.ngo <grimes@ncse.ngo>

Hello,

I hope the weekend is going well. My name is Justin and I'm a first-year Sociology PhD student at University of California, Merced.

I'm reaching out regarding your "Making the Grade" (2020) report on state engagement with climate change education; I found this work highly informative and relevant to my own research interests. I wasn't sure who would be best to contact regarding this work, so apologies if there is a better person to reach out to. I'm a former teacher and am now interested in understanding how climate issues are being addressed within the educational realm.

We're currently exploring quantitative methodology and statistical analysis - I was wondering if the data and code informing this study is available to share? Additionally, if possible, would you be willing to share:

- 1) Any additional comments left by the reviewers in this study and
- 2) A bit of the rationale behind using a weighted average to emphasize agreement and de-emphasize disagreement?

This would inform both my work in current classes and, potentially, how I think about the design of my Master's thesis. Any of your time is greatly appreciated.

Thank you!

Justin B.

JUSTIN BARNES

He/him/his

PHD STUDENT & TEACHING ASSISTANT

DEPARTMENT OF SOCIOLOGY

5200 Lake Road | Merced, California 95343

jbarnes9@ucmerced.edu